

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A method of manufacturing an LCD device is disclosed, which can improve yield by preventing occurrence of a contact failure between a transparent conductive film and a pad region (gate and data regions). In this method, amorphous transparent conductive films connected to a drain electrode, a gate pad and a data pad are formed of a transparent conductive material.